Anyone with children knows that kids often get sick at the worst times. My own children have fallen ill during the night or on Sundays more times than I can count. I tend to them the best I can, yet inside I am anxiously counting the hours before the doctor's office opens.

Since finding Trinity Housecall, I do not have that worry. I simply make a phone call and a qualified doctor is at my house within an hour. I have been lucky enough to always get the same doctor, so he knows my family and my children's medical history by now. He is friendly, competent and able to deliver medication on the spot.

Thankfully, Trinity Housecall isn't just for children. Recently, my father came to visit us in Singapore. The day before we were leaving for a holiday in Vietnam, he realised that he had left vital medication at home. I simply called Trinity Housecall, and they delivered my dad's medication the very same day. And this was a Sunday.
